

ELECTORAL VOTE TRACKER

Barack Obama

The presidential election is determined by electoral votes. Each state's population determines its number of electoral votes. When a candidate wins the vote in a state, he wins all of the electoral votes for that state. The candidate with the most electoral votes wins.

Track the votes as they come in. If Obama wins the state's electoral votes, color the state blue. If Romney wins the state, color it red. Use the chart on the next page to add up all of the electoral votes won by each candidate.

Mitt Romney

	Obama	Romney		Obama	Romney
Alabama --- 9 Votes			Montana --- 3 Votes
Alaska --- 3 Votes			Nebraska --- 5 Votes
Arizona --- 11 Votes			Nevada --- 6 Votes
Arkansas --- 6 Votes			New Hampshire --- 4 Votes
California --- 55 Votes			New Jersey --- 14 Votes
Colorado --- 9 Votes			New Mexico --- 5 Votes
Connecticut --- 7 Votes			New York --- 29 Votes
Delaware --- 3 Votes			North Carolina --- 15 Votes
Florida --- 29 Votes			North Dakota --- 3 Votes
Georgia --- 16 Votes			Ohio --- 18 Votes
Hawaii --- 4 Votes			Oklahoma --- 7 Votes
Idaho --- 4 Votes			Oregon --- 7 Votes
Illinois --- 20 Votes			Pennsylvania --- 20 Votes
Indiana --- 11 Votes			Rhode Island --- 4 Votes
Iowa --- 6 Votes			South Carolina --- 9 Votes
Kansas --- 6 Votes			South Dakota --- 3 Votes
Kentucky --- 8 Votes			Tennessee --- 11 Votes
Louisiana --- 8 Votes			Texas --- 38 Votes
Maine --- 4 Votes			Utah --- 6 Votes
Maryland --- 10 Votes			Vermont --- 3 Votes
Massachusetts --- 11 Votes			Virginia --- 13 Votes
Michigan --- 16 Votes			Washington --- 12 Votes
Minnesota --- 10 Votes			West Virginia --- 5 Votes
Mississippi --- 6 Votes			Wisconsin --- 10 Votes
Missouri --- 10 Votes			Wyoming --- 3 Votes
Totals column 1			Washington, D.C. --- 3 Votes
			Totals column 2

To get the final vote count for each candidate, add the totals from column 1 to column 2.

Obama
 + =
Romney
 + =
 Who won?!